BOMBARDIER FLEXJET ANNOUNCES NEW SALES DIRECTORS

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 1, 2005 – Bombardier Flexjet, the fractional business jet ownership program of Bombardier Aerospace, announced four recent appointments within its national sales organization.

Jim Beckstein has been named senior director of sales for Bombardier Flexjet, joining the organization after four years with CitationShares, where he was responsible for the northeast U.S. region and was the top-producing sales manager. Prior to his post with CitationShares, he served in several capacities with Cessna Aircraft Company, beginning in engineering and moving on to contract administration and sales administration. In his new capacity at Flexjet, Mr. Beckstein is based in the Addison, Texas, headquarters office. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado, where he received a B.S. in Aerospace Engineering.

Mr. Beckstein replaces Dave Armstrong, who has been named sales director for Bombardier Flexjet's southeast region. Mr. Armstrong joined Flexjet as senior director of sales, after spending seven years with Cessna Aircraft Company as sales manager. A 6,000-hour airline transport rated pilot, Mr. Armstrong served in the U.S. Navy on both active duty and in the Naval Reserve, flying a number of different helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft. He retired from the Navy in 2000 after achieving the rank of commander. Mr. Armstrong is now based in Orlando.

Greg Cummings has been appointed sales director for the west-central region, having most recently served as director of human resources for Bombardier Aircraft Services. Mr. Cummings brings to his new position a wealth of knowledge as an integral part of the Bombardier organization, along with management experience from prior executive positions in the field of human resources. A graduate of Oklahoma State University where he received a degree in business, Mr. Cummings received a masters degree in industrial organizational psychology from Emporia State University in Kansas. He is now based in Denver.

Dylan Haynie also joined the sales team from within the Bombardier Flexjet organization, now serving as sales director for the south central region, which encompasses Texas and Mexico. Mr. Haynie, who has been with Flexjet since 1998, was formerly director of contracts and legal services and a member of the senior leadership team. He earned his J.D. from Baylor University and continues to be based in Richardson, Texas.

Bombardier and Flexjet are trademarks of Bombardier Inc. or its subsidiaries.
